

ArchivalOne

ORGANIZE, DIGITIZE, PUBLICIZE

Transforming Archives into Accessible,
Engaging Digital Collections

The Challenge

Historical collections, whether housed in museums, libraries, brands, or public institutions often face disorganization, accessibility barriers, and preservation risks. Without a structured approach, archives remain underutilized, fragile, and difficult to manage.

THE ArchivalOne SOLUTION

ArchivalOne simplifies the archival journey through three essential stages of a full lifecycle:

> ORGANIZE —————

- Sort, categorize and prepare physical collections
- Reduce risk by ensuring nothing is lost or duplicated
- Improve discoverability and workflows with metadata planning

————— DIGITIZE <—

- High-resolution scanning ensures precision and longevity
- Indexing and metadata bridging make archives searchable
- Convert fragile materials into accessible digital collections

> PUBLICIZE —————

- Engage audiences through intuitive digital platforms
- Support internal research, public access or monetization
- Turn archives into valuable storytelling assets

Why It Matters

Preservation

Protect irreplaceable materials from deterioration

Efficiency

Streamline workflows and retrieval processes

Visibility

Expand access to researchers, educators and the public

Funding Potential

Strengthen grant applications with digitization impact

Ready to Future-Proof Your Archives?

Discover how ArchivalOne can help organize, digitize and publicize your collections. Let's unlock history together.

Follow us on LinkedIn and our website at www.archivalone.com

To connect for a conversation and explore more about how ArchivalOne can help your organization monetize and elevate your collections, contact Glenn Chamoff, Head of Sales & Strategic Partnerships, ArchivalOne and HistoryAssociates, Inc. at gchamoff@historyassociates.com